Pike County Public Library Announces New Seed Library and a Full Day of Winter Programs

Milford, PA — The Pike County Public Library is excited to announce the launch of its new Seed Library, in partnership with the PennState Master Gardeners. The seed library is a free community resource designed to encourage gardening, sustainability, and seed sharing throughout Pike County.

The Seed Library will officially kick off on Saturday, February 7, from 11:00 AM to 12:00 PM at the Pike County Public Library. Community members are invited to stop by, learn how the Seed Library works, browse available seeds, and get ready for the upcoming growing season.

February 7 will be a busy and exciting day at the library, especially for families. Immediately following the Seed Library Kickoff, children in kindergarten through fifth grade are invited to stay for Winter Is for the Birds, a hands-on program running from 12:00 PM to 2:00 PM. This educational and creative program will explore winter bird behavior and habitats, making it easy for families to enjoy both events in one visit.

The exciting programming continues later in the month with a Plant Swap Program on Saturday, February 28, from 10:30 AM to 11:30 AM. Participants are encouraged to bring healthy plants, cuttings, or seedlings to swap with fellow community members, fostering connection and shared gardening knowledge.

"The Seed Library is about more than gardening," said Sabrina Llewellyn, Programs & Community Outreach Coordinator. "It's about sharing resources, learning together, and celebrating the seasons as a community. We're especially excited to pair the kickoff with a children's program so families can spend the day learning and exploring at the library."

All programs are free and open to the public. For more information about the Seed Library, Winter Is for the Birds, or upcoming events, visit pcpl.org or follow the library on social media.
